Check-Cap: 5.6% Holder Symetryx Issues Open Letter – Vote No! For the Keystone Dental Holdings Merger - Too Much Dilution

Jason Kolbert
Managing Director & Senior Analyst
jkolbert@dawsonjames.com

Symetryx, a holder of 5.6% of Check-Cap shares issued an open letter to shareholders. In the letter Symetryx cites, among other items, its serious concerns and reason for voting AGAINST the proposed transaction with Keystone Dental. Symetryx discusses its concerns around the actions of the board in its evaluation and approval of the transaction, including the highly questionable valuation of Keystone Dental. Further, Symetryx urges all shareholders to support and vote FOR its five highly qualified, experienced and independent director nominees who will bring accountability back to CHEK and find a more suitable merger partner. One that will not cause the alarmingly high level of dilution to the shareholders that the Keystone transaction, if approved, would entail.

Investment Highlights

Will Check-Cap Get Folded into Keystone Delta? If completed, the business combination will create a public company headquartered in Irvine, CA and focused on advancing commercial execution and market development of Keystone Dental's comprehensive portfolio of implants, arches and other tooth replacement solutions comprised of restoration products, prosthetic solutions, biomaterial, and digital dentistry capabilities.

What will Check-Cap Shareholders Get? Based upon the number of shares to be issued in the business combination, current Check-Cap security holders are expected to own approximately 15% of the combined company representing an equity valuation of $39.7 million and Keystone Dental security holders are expected to own approximately 85% of the combined company representing an equity valuation of $225 million. The actual allocation will be subject to adjustment based on Check-Cap's net cash balance at the time of closing. The Business Combination Agreement provides for a Check-Cap net cash target of $22.3 million at closing of the transaction which implies a $17.4 million premium to the Check-Cap net cash target.

What will Happen to C-Scan? We expect C-Scan program is now terminated. Perhaps NEWCO will divest the assets to a buyer who wants to pursue the technology. The net effect is our model is no longer relevant as KSD dental business has nothing to do with Check-Cap C-Scan.

Valuation. Our valuation is based on the assumed success of the E.U. and U.S. launches of Check-Cap's imaging capsule. We use a 30% probability of success for the E.U. and U.S. approvals and commercialization. The product revenue models then flow into our income statement, which is projected out to 2030. On top of these therapeutic success probabilities, we apply a discount rate (r) of 30% (our highest rate for emerging growth companies), and we assume additional capital raises (dilution).

Risk Factors: These include clinical, investment and financial, regulatory, intellectual property, and commercial risk.

Risk Analysis

Clinical Trial Risk. Check-Cap is dependent on the outcome of multiple clinical trials.

Commercial Risk. Check-Cap hopes to initially commercialize the device in Europe and Israel, followed by the U.S. There can be no assurances that the company can achieve meaningful market share.

Financial Risk. Check-Cap is likely to require additional capital raises before the company can be self-sustaining. There can be no guarantees that the company will be able to raise the needed capital.

Investment Risk. Check-Cap is a small capital company, which can translate into high volatility and risk for investors. The company has no revenues and is dependent on the clinical progress of the device.

Intellectual Property. Check-Cap may face I.P. challenges, forcing the company to defend its patents or against claims that the company is infringing on other patents.

Regulatory Risk. Check-Cap, even with good clinical data, could face extensive delays and other regulatory setbacks.
